CO-OPERATION AND SERVICE.

NEW YEAR'S DAY seems an appropriate time to record our cordial appreciation for the support, personal and financial, which its many friends in the trade have given the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during the year past, and to express the hope that their resulting business may be increased during 1916—a year which gives augury of an increase of prosperity over the depressed year of 1914 and the bettering year 1915. And in our word of appreciation to the publishers, without whose co-operation our service to the retail trade would be impracticable, we feel sure the latter will join.

This co-operation is not one of advertising alone. We ask, for example, prompt information from publishers as to books forthcoming and published, in the latter case preferably through copies sent us for record, annotation or descriptive review either in advance of or immediately after publication; or in the case of special editions, prompt information on the blanks for this purpose which we are glad to supply on request. We particularly need accurate information as to price, especially as this is not given authoritatively on the copyright cards which we use, when they reach us early enough, for verification of other information. As a rule we expect to receive and do receive from publishers generally information which enables us to record books in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY simultaneously with their reception by the Copyright Office and in advance of the preparation of the copyright card.

The bibliographical record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY alone is maintained at a cost substantially exceeding its entire returns from subscriptions, and this without taking into account the cost of any of its other features as a trade paper. The deficit on our bibliographical work and all other expenses have consequently to be made good from the advertising patronage which a trade journal naturally commands, advertising based, of course, on pecuniary advantage. Those of our bibliographical publications which were solely of a reference nature and which therefore could not ask or expect advertising, such as our original American Catalogue and successive volumes, had so often proved unremunerative that we were finally obliged to cease their publication, especially when in later years the field of support became divided by the publications of our friends of the H. W. Wilson Company. The H. W. Wilson Company has been enabled to carry on this reference work largely because Mr. Wilson has worked out his scheme of publication on the ingenious plan of a service basis, charging a price higher than we were ever able to, but still no more than adequate, to those larger libraries and booksellers which utilized his service largely, and a smaller price to the smaller libraries whose use of it and resources were alike limited. Mr. Wilson originally devised this scheme, we believe, for his Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature, which has now supplanted our publication of Poole's Index (the latter never profitable) and after applying it later to his great United States Catalog, for which he asked what seemed the large price of $36.00 to the larger libraries, has recently announced his intention of applying it to his Cumulative Book Index, which, after consultation with us, he has decided to publish nine times a year instead of six times as recently.

Through the division of the bibliographical field thus made possible, we concentrate our efforts on our weekly and monthly record of new publications, and our other features as a trade journal, used by book dealers and libraries directly as a purchase list and therefore rendering advertising in them a profitable investment, while the Wilson publications, which are essentially for reference purposes only, may be supported primarily on the service basis, which Mr. Wilson has ingeniously and justly worked out.

The imprint editions of the Christmas Bookshelf, of the Educational List, and of other PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY issues, and of the monthly Book Review, furnished to booksellers at a price in most cases below the cost of duplication, are other examples of trade co-operation in which we share and whose value it may not be amiss to take this opportunity to emphasize. The fact that the bookseller buys these imprint editions for the purpose of sending them to known book-buyers, and pays at least part of the cost of manufacture as well as all the cost of distribution, is evidence enough that the waste incurred in the distribution of gratuitous printed matter, however attractive in appearance, is with them largely eliminated. They are in fact but another instance of the accepted axiom that trade co-operation is most efficient when exerted through permanent and established trade agencies. Indeed, if such co-operative effort is diverted from these agencies, to just such an extent is the ground cut from under them in their own efforts at trade service.

COMPARED with the heavy mortality record of 1914, the list of bankruptcies in the retail book-trade during 1915 shows a marked decrease. The year shows thirty-nine failures (including eight cases in which compromises were effected), while the total of bankruptcies for 1914 reached fifty-eight. The unsettling effect of the European War is still evident, however, when comparison is made with 1913 with its twenty-three retail failures. Among the more prominent stores which "went under" during the year are Rhode & Haskins in New York, the two Dearing stores in Louisville, the Reisman Bros. stores in Scranton and Wilkesbarre, Beebe & Phillips in New Haven, and the Morris Book Shop in Chicago. Among the firms which were forced to effect a compromise with their creditors were the College Book Store in Providence, the W. Y. Foote Co. in Syracuse, and the A. L. Chatterton Co. in New York. Over against this record of thirty-nine retail failures is a record of thirty-eight new book-stores (including new book departments in two important department stores). Prominent among these are the new Norman, Remington & Co. store in Toledo, a branch of the Norman, Remington Co. of Baltimore, the new store in Harrisburg conducted by Latimer Willis, formerly with Abraham & Straus of Brooklyn, Walter Berg's store in Tacoma, and the Detroit store opened by C. Ray Dennen. The two important department stores to add book departments are Stern Brothers in New York and L. S. Ayres & Co. in Indianapolis. Perhaps the most important of the retail failures in Canada during 1915 was that of Bell & Cockburn in Toronto.

1915 witnessed the failure of one general book publishing house, the Browne & Howell Company of Chicago, and of one subscription book publishing house, the Lamb Publishing Company of New York. The former firm, however, resumed its activities under the changed name, The Howell Company. Two new general publishers, Alfred A. Knopf, and Gomme & Marshall, have joined the ranks during the year, while Col. William C. Hunter, the Kansas City author, is now publishing his new books under the style, Hunter Service, Inc. The incorporations of the year include Michell Kennerley, for $135,000, the Luther Burbank Press, for $480,000, and the Catholic Publishing Society of America, for $250,000. Worthy of note is the rapid stride forward of the Standard Publishing Company of Cincinnati, and of the Good Health Publishing Company of Battle Creek, both of which added considerably to their growing lists during 1915. The year marked no consolidations, the only changes being that of McBride, Nast & Co. to Robert M. McBride & Co., and that of Hinds & Noble to Noble & Noble.

DURING the past year a number of well-known members have been lost to the publishing trade. Death has claimed John Bishop Putnam, T. Y. Crowell, John Armstrong, William H. Rand and M. A. Donohue. We enter the new year the poorer for their loss.

NEW YORK CITY A GREAT PUBLISHING CENTER.

MORE than ever the magazine and book publishing business of the country, says The American Printer, is being concentrated in New York City, and the same holds true of printing of all kinds, bookbinding and similar lines. With this growth has come a proportionate increase in the industries closely allied to publishing and printing, as, for example, electrotyping, lithographing, engraving, typefoundry, etc.

In 1909 New York City produced approximately one-quarter of the entire output of the industry in the United States, surpassing all the states, except New York, not only in the industry as a whole, but in each of its branches. The whole State of Illinois, for example, which ranks second after New York State, produced less than one-half of the product manufactured in New York City, being surpassed by almost one hundred million dollars.

New York City not only has a large proportion of the total, but it also has a large share of the big plants, as is indicated by the fact that while approximately one-tenth of the establishments of the United States are in New York, one-fifth of the capital of the country so invested is to be found in that city.

Considering book-printing and publishing or job printing or newspaper and periodical printing separately, the same enormous concentration is evident.

In 1909 New York published thirty-six per cent of the total average daily circulation of newspapers in the ten largest cities of the United States. This is far more than the corresponding figures for the publications of Chicago and Philadelphia combined. Such publications in New York are increasing faster than in other cities, as is shown by the fact that the increase in the average combined circulation of these publications in New York between 1904 and 1909 was over 500,000, while in Chicago it was 225,000, and in Philadelphia 127,000.

The number of different monthly periodicals using the United States mails during 1912 was 5466, of which 529, almost one-tenth of the total, entered the post offices of New York City. These are primarily the productions of the largest cities, and of New York especially, as is shown by the fact that in 1909, forty-five per cent of the value of this product in the entire country was issued in that city. The enormous quantity of second-class matter distributed from New York City is indicative of the amount of printed matter which is published there. Its extent is well shown in a recent report of the Postmaster-General. During the year ending June, 1914, a total of 997,547,040 pounds of second-class matter was mailed in the United States. Of this tremendous amount no less than 199,000,000 pounds, one-fifth of the total, was mailed in New York City, a figure which almost equals the amount mailed in the States of Illinois and Pennsylvania combined.

Naturally, the same concentration is found in the allied trades and processes which enter into the production of publications. In 1912, for example, there were almost one hundred bookbinding and bookmaking establishments in New York, and there were ninety-one lithographing, engraving and electrotyping plants, exclusive of those allied with larger printing establishments. Such concentration cannot be found in any other section of the country. New York produced one-half of the entire value of the lithographic product of the United States in 1909.

During recent years a change has been taking place in the location in New York of the publishing and printing houses and their dependencies, which is due to the requirements peculiar to these industries in the matter of abundant light and room.

As a result, two clearly-defined tendencies are on foot; one is the beginning of a movement of the trade into a new section of Manhattan; the other is a movement toward the outskirts of the great city.

This latter trend, away from the city's center, is, as a matter of fact, not infrequently seen in the drift of a considerable number of industries away from the congested centers of several of our large cities. In the early days many industries were scattered; later because of changing conditions they located in the cities; and, finally, with new factors coming into play, they are retreating, as it were, a little out of the city's commotion. In other words, these industries are showing a tendency toward decentralization.

Publishing, printing and allied trades are inevitably city industries. Other lines of business have in the past grown up equally well in rural or sparsely settled localities; in fact, in certain cases the advantages of the smaller place may be marked. Publishing, printing, lithographing, electrotyping, etc., have from the beginning, however, been chiefly associated with large cities. Moreover, this probably will remain true in the future, and there is little danger that the shifting about of such industries in New York City will to any extent carry them outside the city limits.

The publishing industry is making this retreat toward the edge of the great city merely because the new locality now offers certain advantages which can be combined with the advantages formerly held. Such, for example, are cheap land and rents, reduced insurance, abundant light and space, which allows room for the lateral expansion of the plant, thereby permitting an economical arrangement of the different processes, etc.

As a matter of policy these establishments cannot move too far from the center of the city, because however inviting the new location may be the fundamental advantages which are inherent in a New York location must not be lost. The outlying sections of New York are meeting these requirements of the industry in a superior way, so that the pre-eminence of the city in printing and publishing is assured for years to come.

What are the advantages of a New York location which permanently attract such a large proportion of these industries to that city?

The first advantage is found in the fact that a cordial co-operation exists between the different establishments in the trade. The publishing industry in New York City dates back to the end of the sixteenth century. Some of its present well-known houses have been in operation for almost one hundred years. They had led the way in making improvements in the trade which have been of benefit to publishers everywhere. Indeed, certain of the older houses have virtually been training schools for the industry of the city. Men equipped with the knowledge gained through such connections have later branched out for themselves, and so perpetuated the policies of the parent house.

New York is the home of the writer, the illustrator, the artist. It is undeniably true that writers of all sorts do to a considerable extent live either in or near New York, or at least they visit that city much more frequently than they visit any other metropolis. A recent canvass by a New York paper of the dozen or more story-writers whose names are to-day familiar to the magazine-reading public of America, reveals the fact that a surprisingly large proportion of them reside in or near New York City. In addition to the fact that the story-writers are here, a plant publishing periodicals possesses the advantage of nearness to the leaders and to the important happenings in activities of many sorts.

In this same connection the source of another supply is important, namely, advertising, which now occupies so large a place in the publications of to-day. New York, being the largest manufacturing and trade center in the world, the advertising of its wares is much sought. For both newspapers and periodicals, nearness to these manufacturers and dealers who spend so lavishly for advertising their products is by no means an unimportant factor.

Parallel with the advantage of keeping in touch with the sources of supply is the similar advantage of keeping in touch with those upon whom the marketing of their product depends. This applies especially to book publishing. Certainly the publisher in New York City is most fortunately located from that point of view. Bookdealers, as well as book-buyers, visit New York in greater numbers than any other city, and this has its effect upon the readiness with which its publishers dispose of their books and periodicals.

A still further advantage of a location in New York City is the unparalleled supply of labor constantly available there. This possibly is among the strongest assets of New York. First, there is never a shortage of labor, and second, the labor in this city possesses superior training and proficiency.

Such a condition is in part the result of the years during which the industry has been centered here. Combined with this is the desire of these expert workmen who receive high wages, and it is held in common with similar men in other trades, to be near the attractions of the great city. As one workman put it, "We can get more for nothing in New York than you can buy with a whole week's salary in a small town."

The rates of wages paid to workmen in the publishing and printing industries in New York are slightly higher than those paid elsewhere. This high-grade labor does not readily leave New York. A publishing house not long ago moved to the outskirts of Greater New York, taking with it something over three hundred operatives. This firm located only a few miles from the municipal limits of the city. At first eighty per cent of their labor supply commuted between their work and New York. At present ninety per cent of the seven hundred and fifty operatives employed are residents of the suburban community in which the plant is located. These men and their families are within easy distance of the great central city. Otherwise, so this publisher maintains, he would not have been successful in holding them.

"SOTHEY'S" TO MOVE TO BOND STREET.

Two old London institutions are involved in the news that the world-famed book auction rooms of Messrs. Sotheby, Wilkinson & Hodge, in Wellington Street, are to be abandoned for new quarters in Bond Street—the old familiar rooms of the Doré Gallery, which has closed its doors. The actual move will not, it is probable, take place till next autumn.

This is not, of course, the firm's first removal. It was at No. 145 Strand that Messrs. Leigh and Sotheby founded the business as it is known now. But they derived it from Samuel Baker, of York Street, Covent Garden, and, indeed, Baker, Leigh & Sotheby was for a period the style of the firm. Mr. Baker was described as the father of the bookselling fraternity by Dibdin. He died in 1778 and left his property to his nephew, John Sotheby.

His successor on the rostrum was George Leigh, who had a perfect command of his hammer and his audience in those great days of bibliomania, when men like the Duke of Roxburghe, Richard Heber and Dr. Gossett contended by candlelight for treasures which now are so costly and so seldom in the market that they nearly always are hidden for by experts acting for unknown collectors. The spirit in which these great sales were conducted is lost, and it is perhaps only to be recovered in the pages of Dibdin, who describes the contending bidders as Homeric heroes whose bids were the strokes of lance and falchion.

George Leigh was a man of scholarship and tact, perfectly equipped to fan the flames of competition and to allay them at need. His snuffbox was famous. Dibdin says that it had "a not less imposing air than the remarkable periwig of Sir Fopling of old. When a high priced book is balancing between £15 and £20 it is a fearful signal of its reaching an additional sum if Mr. Leigh should lay down his hammer and delve into this said crumpled, horn shaped snuffbox."

It is hardly possible to trace the ever-growing association of the firm with the greatest bibliophiles and collections. Its marked catalogues are of the greatest value, and the entire series has been deposited in the British Museum. It is here that Messrs. Sotheby have won their greatest position in the world's book market. As an example of their carefulness it may be recalled that a few years ago in offering a first edition of Walton and Cotton's "Compleat Angler" they noted in the catalogue that, while the copy was perfect, sound and clean, yet, "to be strictly accurate, we must mention that half a comma on the last leaf of the Walton has been cut away in the binding."

As to the Doré Gallery into which "Sotheby's" will move, one remembers when in Non-conformist families in the provinces the Doré Gallery ranked among the leading sights of London. It was considered to be more important to see Doré's vast painting, "Christ Leaving the Praetorium," than all the masterpieces of the National Gallery. Women entered the heavily curtained room as if it were a chapel. Right down to the present day this picture has remained in its place, but its fame has greatly diminished in the last twenty years. And the old gallery has lent itself to the vagaries of modern art.

REVELL'S CHICAGO OFFICE BURNED OUT.

STEVENS BILL REINTRODUCED.

THE so-called Stevens Standard Price Bill to legalize fixed prices, in whose success the book-trade is so vitally interested, has been reintroduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman William A. Ayres, without change.

Former Representative Raymond B. Stevens, of New Hampshire, who introduced the measure in the last Congress, is now one of the counsel to the Federal Trade Commission, but the country-wide discussion of this legislation has so thoroughly identified it with the name of "Stevens" that it will probably continue to go so designated. The so-called Harrison Narcotic Bill is known by that title in the Treasury Department records and rulings, although Representative Harrison, of New York, became Governor of the Philippine Islands nearly two years before the bill became a law.

At the opening of Congress more than 165 members of the House and approximately a like proportion of the Senate had pledged their support to the bill which Representative Ayres has reintroduced. The American Booksellers' Association has already given formal endorsement to the measure.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is in receipt of this letter from Mr. L. C. Page of the Page Company, which is self-explanatory:

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 22, 1915.

Editor PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

We have read with interest your editorial comment and the accompanying letter of December 9th from the Fleming H. Revell Company, under the heading, "Jordan Marsh in Anti-Price Maintenance Campaign—An Answer."

We must take some exception to your statement that the letter of the Fleming H. Revell Company "furnishes an admirable re-statement of the book trade's position on the subject." By the book trade we suppose that you mean, using the term in its larger sense, publishers, manufacturers, printers, department stores, catalog houses, in addition to the retail trade. We believe that there is more than one view-point in the question of price maintenance and in particular that there is more than one opinion in the "book trade" with regard to the "Stevens Price Maintenance Bill."

We believe that the matter should be thoroughly discussed and all sides of the problem given fair attention, and we do not believe that the opinion of one house, which is both publisher and retail bookseller, should be stamped with your endorsement as "an admirable re-statement of the book trade's position on the subject."

Our opinion of the "Stevens Price Maintenance Bill," for instance, is quite opposite to that mentioned as theirs in the Fleming H. Revell Company's letter. We likewise received the mentioned circular from the Jordan Marsh Company, Boston. The following is a copy of our reply of December 6th: (see attached copy).

We believe that you will feel disposed to give the same prominence to this letter in your next issue, as you gave in your last issue to the letter of the Fleming H. Revell Company.

[Enclosure.]

Dec. 6, 1915.

The Jordan Marsh Company,
Treasurer's Office,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sirs:

We have your letter of December 2d with regard to the Stevens or Price Maintenance Bill. We are, generally speaking, familiar with this bill and are strongly opposed to it for the essential reason that it would prevent legitimate trade competition and so be contrary to all rules of political economy or business.

This publishing house has always been a firm believer that a book, whether a copy-right publication or not, is essentially an article of merchandise and that when the title has once passed by a bill of sale the publisher, manufacturer, or whoever is the seller, has no further legal control, and that the question of the selling price belongs exclusively to the purchaser who has paid his good money for the book or other article of merchandise.

This letter also answers your corresponding letter addressed to Messrs. Dana Estes & Company, whose publishing business we took over in 1914.

You are at liberty to make such use of our letter as you see fit.

BRITISH COPYRIGHT IN CANADA.

THE following opinion on one phase of the involved question of Canadian copyright, prepared for the Publishers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland, by Mr. E. J. MacGillivray, the English copyright authority, will be of interest to the American trade:

"The question is whether under the Copyright law as it stands at present first or simultaneous publication in Canada of a work of American origin is sufficient to confer copyright in England.

The answer is in the negative.

It is clear that copyright in England can subsist only under the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1911.

Section 1 (i) provides that the test of copyright in the case of a published work is first publication within such parts of His Majesty's dominions to which the Act extends and that copyright shall subsist in no other works except so far as protection is extended by Order in Council.

Section 35 (iii) provides that a work shall be deemed to be first published within such parts of His Majesty's dominions notwithstanding simultaneous publication elsewhere, and a work is to be deemed to be published simultaneously in two places if published within 14 days.

The Copyright Act, 1911, does not extend to Canada. No notice has been given under Section 25 (ii) authorising the Dominion to be treated as if it were a dominion to which the Act extends and no Order in Council has been made under Section 26 (iii) extending the protection of the Copyright Act to works first published in Canada. Section 26 (iii) specifically enacts that, save as provided by such an Order, works the authors whereof were resident in a dominion to which the Act does not extend shall not, whether they are British subjects or not, be entitled to any protection except such protection as is conferred on works first published within the parts of His Majesty's dominions to which the Act extends.

It follows that under the Copyright Act, 1911—(1) the work of an American author does not obtain protection by simultaneous publication in Canada; (2) the work of a Canadian author does not obtain protection by first publication in Canada.

The question remains whether under the Copyright Act, 1842, which is still in force in Canada, publication in Canada is sufficient to confer copyright in England.

The Act of 1842 is repealed by Section 36 of the Copyright Act, 1911, 'provided that this repeal shall not take effect in any part of His Majesty's dominions until this Act comes into operation in that part, and subject to the proviso in Section 26 (ii) that 'in any self-governing dominion to which this Act does not extend the enactments repealed by this Act shall so far as they are operative in that dominion continue in force until repealed by the Legislature of that dominion.

The question is whether books first published in Canada can claim protection throughout the British dominions on the ground that the Copyright Act, 1842, and the International Copyright Act, 1886, still apply to such books to the extent of affording them protection not only in Canada but throughout the whole Empire—in other words whether books first published in Canada are entitled to the same protection as they were entitled to before the Copyright Act, 1911, was passed. In my opinion, the protection which such works can claim under the old Copyright Acts is limited to protection in Canada, and I think this is so whether the author be an American or Canadian.

My answer therefore is that it is not right to assume that in the case of an original Canadian book publication in Canada under the Act of 1842 is sufficient to protect the work throughout the British Empire and a fortiori that publication in Canada will not so protect either American or English books. If protection in England and the rest of the Empire is desired there must be first or simultaneous publication in England or some other part of the British dominions to which the copyright Act, 1911, extends and this applies equally to Canadian, American and English books."

ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS.

THE oldest organization, serious or social, in the American book trade, the Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers, gathered for its thirty-first annual banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on Wednesday evening, December 29th, to celebrate its time-honored "One-Happy-Night."

In its youthful years, when the propagandists propagated, and visionaries sought for an organization that would be all inclusive, embracing everybody in the book trade and in allied lines who could raise the price for the big feast, the Brotherhood banquets were "great events" in point of attendance, but they were often unwieldy in rhythmic good fellowship and sometimes resulted in less enjoyment than the spirit of such social occasions demands.

As time sped on the Brotherhood gradually evolved into a select loyal band of congenial spirits, meeting once a year to revel in a big evening; the time chosen always being between Christmas and New Year's day.

For a decade past, the membership has varied little numerically. As older veterans "checked in and passed over," others came along each year to catch the joy of the Brotherhood and help keep alive its ancient traditions.

Sixty-five members sat down to enjoy the feast, with William J. Barse in the chair as toast-master. When the tables were cleared for after dinner action the B. C. T. song was lustily sung:

In the good old winter time,
In the good old winter time,
The dinner of the B. C. T.
Makes us feel so fine.
We eat and drink and merry be
And that's a very good sign,
That we are brothers one for all
And brothers all the time.

President Barse then set the pace in a witty address and was followed by president-elect C. C. Schepmoes, who read Sam Walter Foss' poem, "Uncle Seth on the Modern Novel," which may not be familiar to PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY readers:

UNCLE SETH ON THE MODERN NOVEL.
Them novelists who write to-day, w'y they hain't got the trade,
There ain't a one that knows just how a story should be made;
Not one who understands the thing, not one who does the job,
An' not a one who slings himself like ol' Sylvanus
Cobb.
Ah, ol' Sylvanus Cobb, my boy, w'en he was on the deck,
We had a story then of giant intellect.

The hero of a story now he don't git in no row;
No Injuns, an' no piruts, an' no villains anyhow.
The hero of to-day is tame; hain't got no whiz an'
whirl:
Sets still an' lets some other chap go in an' court his girl!
The novelists who write to-day have all mistook their job;
Not one has got the glor'us gift of ol' Sylvanus Cobb.

Sylvanus took his hero where a hero ought to go,
In scrapes an' awful dangers where he seemed to have no show;
He drowned him, shot him, scalped him, but every reader knew Sylvanus knew his business well and he would pull him through.
He bruised him, banged him, buried him, an' did a handsome job,
But still we knew the chap was safe with ol' Sylvanus Cobb.

He'd get the chap in dungeons deep, with soldiers all about,
To fill his body full of shot if he should once git out;
Sylvanus was too shrewd for that, an' always had in stock
A subterranean passageway through which the chap could walk.
An' though he slashed an' slaughtered him, he understood his job;
We knowed that we could trust the man with ol'
Sylvanus Cobb.

We'd see the hero's funeral, we'd hear the parson
pray,
We'd see his coffin in the tomb, all neatly packed away,
But that didn't worry us a bit. Above the yawnin' grave
We knowed Sylvanus still was there, an' he had power to save.
We'd leave him in the grave content, an' we didn't care a pin,
We knowed Sylvanus knowed the trick to git him out ag'in.

While Sylvanus led his hero we were not a bit afraid,
Though he marched ag'in an army an' he faced a cannonade;

Though a mine should cave in on him, though a whirlpool sucked him in,
We all trusted to Sylvanus to produce him sound ag'in.

And Sylvanus allus done it. Oh, he understood the job;
We knowed that we could trust the man with old
Sylvanus Cobb.

Give me them good ol' days of guns, of snakes, an'
gapin' jaws,
Of fives an' raging catamounts, with blood upon their paws;
W'en six-foot heroes courted girls that they had snatched away
From out a bloody bandit's clasp, an' tramped him into clay.

I wish we had some writers now who understood
the job,
Some writers who could sling themselves like ol'
Sylvanus Cobb.

Brother Billy Walker, who is famed more for his piety than for airy persiflage, made a distinct hit with a poem written for the occasion, "When we were thirty-one," a limited edition of which is now "in press."
Addresses followed by Herman Kleinteich,
H. V. Patterson, president of "The Younger Set," Al MacMullen, Louis A. Keating, Bert
Caldwell, and last of all by "Uncle Bill" Kelly.
L. B. Westbrook and Joe Winters each sang solos with all the art of opera stars. The evening was probably the most enjoyed of any in a decade. The chairman's skill in garnering so much native talent "right in our midst" was masterly. All the talks were good and worth while, those by Patterson and Al MacMullen being distinctly witty.
The "System" that controls the destinies of the Brotherhood now declared it will never again go afieid for talent for the banquets when so much of it is on tap at home.

President Barse furnished the menu and songs in a booklet bound in limp leather, also a serviceable souvenir in the shape of a pocket knife, a gift that brought him promptly the usual omen-killer—a penny from each of the sixty odd guests.

ITALIAN LITERATURE AS AFFECTED BY THE WAR.

A telegram published in the papers says that Gabriele d'Annunzio, after having taken part in several aerial raids, during which the enemy's camp was bombarded, is now ill at Venice because of excessive fatigue, says Michele Ricciardi in a letter to The Nation. A great orator, who is one of our most eminent men of letters, the Deputy Fradelletto, of Venice, he continued, is lecturing in all the larger cities of Italy on the subject of the causes and aims of our war; the writers of philosophy and of criticism, in their reviews and in the course of their daily life, are fain to pronounce judgments and carry on polemics—for instance, Benedetto Croce.

Certain novelists and story-writers have become chroniclers of the war for the great newspapers. The publishing firm of Treves, the most important of its kind for literary productions, is now entirely taken up with publications of works of historical, military, and journalistic propaganda about the war. It has published lately, among other less works, the discourse pronounced by Gabriele d'Annunzio in favor of Italy's intervention, and two volumes for Luigi Barzini, who is the strongest and most gifted chronicler and reporter of the war among our colleagues. There is no place at present for the other authors habitually preferred by the house of Treves.

The poets are in most part silent, the older as well as the younger. Here and there the poets of the people improvise patriotic hymns, but these are dispersed in air, and do not reach print. Notwithstanding the fact that the war against Austria has its roots deeply planted in the soul of Italy, it has not as yet found its great poet.

Some writers of comedy announce new works, but it will be difficult for them to find dramatic companies to act them. A few have succeeded lately, in Rome, in getting their last works acted, but they have found an indifferent public and severe critics.

In short, the scant literary production that exists is almost exclusively journalistic, and limited to chronicles of the war. The rest is almost all silence. The same may be said of painting and sculpture, and apparently also of music.

COPYRIGHT NOTES.

ARE LETTERS FROM THE FRONT COPY-RIGHTABLE WORKS?

Le Droit D'Auteur discusses interestingly the question as to whether letters sent from the trenches are literary works capable of being copyrighted. "The question rests for its solution," says Le Droit D'Auteur, "on the distinction that as long as the letter only contains a narration of simple facts, even including observations and heightened by a recounting of the impressions which these facts make on 'soldiers and those officially attached to the armies'—as the terms of the Convention of Geneva in 1906 put it—this letter, even when published, is merely information, news, a statement of facts, and may accordingly be freely reprinted, regardless of the interest of the events which it describes. On the other hand, if the author of the letter set out to enquire into the causes of the events, to draw therefrom a lesson or to analyze the philosophy back of these events, and if, having the leisure, he made an actual narrative infused with imagination and possessed of literary style, in short, if he wrote an article possessed of original and artistic quality, once published this letter is protected from unauthorized reproduction by article 9 of the revised Convention of Berne or by our own similar domestic legislation. If the letter bear all the ear-marks of an article, it is only open to general reproduction in the press provided it fails to bear a prohibitory notice; if a series of letters constitute une oeuvre they are ipso facto protected. This would be the case, as someone has pointed out, with lettres written peacefully in one's home and invented out of whole cloth. This is one of those instances in which law and ethics collide."

PERIODICAL NOTES.

THE NAME OF the Tip Top Magazine, issued by Street & Smith in New York, has been changed to the Wide-Awake Magazine.

A LONDON DISPATCH states that the Athenaeum ceases to be a weekly magazine during 1916. It will be issued monthly at the price of one shilling.

The Photographic Times, founded in 1871, the second oldest photographic magazine in the United States, has consolidated with Popular Photography. The magazine will continue to be published in Boston under the title Popular Photography by the American Photographic Publishing Co. who are also the publishers of American Photography and Practical Photography.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish "Rich Man, Poor Man" by Maximilian Foster on January 21.

"TORCHY, PRIVATE SEC.," the further adventures of Sewell Ford's amazing hero, will be published by E. J. Clode on January 3.

SULLY & KLEINTEICH published recently a "Handbook of the Operas" by Edith B. Ordway. It gives an act-by-act synopsis of fifty grand operas, including recent successes and several whose première or American revival is announced for the present season.

PEGGY MADE A good catch, and having caught him she held him fast by smiles and good natured camaraderie—that was the secret of her happy married life. "Persuasive Peggy" by Maravene Thompson will be published on January 7 by the Frederick A. Stokes Co.

BEFORE CONGRESS RECESSED for the holidays twenty-one different bills had been introduced providing for a more equitable adjustment of the postal rates on first class mail matter. A strong demand is being made for a change in the rate on all local delivery letters from two cents to one cent per ounce.

PLANS FOR THE 1916 session of the New York Booksellers' School are practically completed. The Educational Department of the West Side Y. M. C. A. will again conduct the course. Work will commence immediately upon the return of Mr. B. W. Huebsch who is now abroad with the Ford party.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish in January Rupert Hughes's novel, "Clipped Wings," published serially under the title, "The Barge of Dreams." It is in quite a different style from that of his two latest books, being the story of a great actress, who loved both her home life and her career, and who was unhappy when she sacrificed either.

ARTHUR STRINGER, the author of "The Prairie Wife," not long ago described the Canadian Northwest as it stands revealed in current magazine-fiction: "It's a couple of timber wolves, a dog-train, sixty-seven below zero, gun-play interlarded with denatured French, and a sergeant of the Mounted Police who, of course, always marries the Girl!"

MARIE VAN VORST, the American novelist who makes her home in Paris, and is at present visiting in this country and delivering lectures for the benefit of the American Ambulance in France, has written a book dealing with the subject of the American Ambulance and with her personal work, entitled "War Letters of an American Woman." The John Lane Co. are the publishers.

THIS BEING THE SEASON when people are most apt to "get things the matter with them," the New York Public Library has issued at the request of the New York City Department of Health a list of some seventy odd health books. Several thousand copies of the list have already been distributed through the high schools and evening schools of the city. The list will be sent by the Department upon request.

THOSE WHO PREFER the Joseph Conrad of "The Nigger" to the Joseph Conrad of "Chance" will be attracted by the title of the new volume of short stories by him announced by Doubleday, Page for January 15th, for, whether intentionally or no, he has left off such dry-land sounding titles as "Victory" and "Chance" and called the volume "Within the Tides." Two of the four tales have their scenes laid in the South Seas, one on the coast of Spain, and the fourth on the English coast.

AN INTERESTING VOLUME containing old and rare prints of New York has just been brought out by Henry Collins Brown, 15 E. 40th St., New York City, under the title, "The Book of Old New York." The prints are from the private collections of J. P. Morgan, Robert Goelet, W. F. Havemeyer, Henry Morgenthau and others. In addition to the privately printed subscribers' edition, a substantial cloth edition has also been prepared.

THE NEW YORK Society for the Suppression of Vice has raised legal question as to the morality of Stanislaw Przybyszewski's "Homo Sapiens," published by Alfred A. Knopf. Mr. Knopf was summoned into court on Dec. 23 on the complaint of John Sumner, chief special agent of the Society, to answer to the charge that this book is "obscene, filthy and indecent." Mr. Knopf's counsel offered in evidence book reviews from magazines and newspapers. Most of the reviews were favorable and none referred to anything immoral or objectionable. Assistant District Attorney Van Castle tried to have them barred out as evidence, contending that press reviews as a rule did not deal accurately with many books and that their value as to the morality of a book was negligible. It was then suggested by the defense that the case be adjourned to give Magistrate Simms time to read the book. The case was accordingly adjourned till January 5.

A SPECIAL AMERICAN EDITION of F. S. Oliver's "Ordeal by Battle," now in its twenty-third thousand in England, has been prepared by the Macmillan Co. A small edition was first imported from the London publishers, but almost at once it began to be talked about and it was decided to bring out a special American edition. It is, in effect, an argument for conscription based on the thesis that a democracy, of all national forms, has the deepest need of national service.

"NORTHWARD, SOUTHWARD, eastward, westward—allward—" is the little line of six-point on the title page of "Allward," a story of gypsy love by E. S. Stevens which Dodd, Mead & Co. publish on January 3. At thirty-two Richard Lyddon finds himself foot-loose and free, with a big, limber, healthy body and enough money to indulge his passion for the open road. He is a sort of "beloved vagabond," living the life of the broad highway, finding happiness and adventure and in the end—the gypsy girl, his mate.

"THE ETERNAL MAGDALENE," by Robert H. McLaughlin, a realistic novel of contemporary American life, which the George H. Doran Co. will publish on January 8, makes a strong appeal to those people who are interested in the problem of what we are to do with the Magdalenes on our city streets. Although dealing with a question which the world has been accustomed to speak about in whispers, "The Eternal Magdalene" is said to be so clean and wholesome in its viewpoint that it disarms criticism.

"FELICITY CROFTON," the new novel by Marguerite Bryant, author of "Christopher Hibbault, Roadmaker," will be published by Duffield & Co. on January 3. The story introduces us to a group of people dwelling near the famous old watering place of Bath in England—Felicity Crofton and her daughter, Veronica and Dominic Blessington, Adam Preston and Stella. There is a mystery about Stella, and Mrs. Crofton, through her love and affection for Adam, comes to play a great part in their two lives. Mrs. Crofton first suffers for her self-sacrifice, but is ultimately rewarded.

IN AN ALLEGED EFFORT to force full publicity of the affairs of all the corporations floated by T. J. Foster, President of the International Correspondence School of Scranton, Penn., Rozier C. Bowman of Philadelphia instituted suit on December 22 against the International Text Book Company, an adjunct of the schools, for $500 damages, alleging fraud in the sale to him of International Education Publishing stock. Bowman alleges that he bought the stock on the representation that the company was paying large dividends. He admits having received dividends, but asserts they were not paid out of sales of the stock and not out of earnings. The company discontinued dividends last July, and since then the corporation, it is said, has steadfastly refused explanations. A few weeks ago the minority stockholders met to consider means of forcing an accounting from the Foster group.

THE BOARD OF UNITED STATES GENERAL APPRAISERS overruled on December 29 the protest of the International Forwarding Company against Collector Malone's assessment on books, entitled "Prohliche Kinderzeit," printed in the German language and intended for the use of children. Each of the books weighs less than 24 ounces. Duty was levied at the rate of 4 cents per pound under the specific provision in paragraph 325 of the act of 1913 for "books of paper or other material for children's use, lithographically printed in whole or in part, not exceeding in weight 24 ounces each." In the protest they were claimed to be properly entitled to free entry by virtue of the provision in paragraph 426 of said act for "books and pamphlets printed wholly or chiefly in languages other than English." In denying the claim for free entry, General Appraiser Fischer said: "In view of the Court's interpretation of the law as it appeared in the act of 1897, Congress determined to remove any possibility of doubt concerning its intention with respect to the tariff classification of this and like merchandise by specifically providing for 'books of paper or other material for children's use, lithographically printed in whole or in part, not exceeding in weight twenty-four ounces each.' Certainly, this provision is entirely too plain to admit of the slightest misunderstanding concerning the legislative purpose. The books in question are precisely and specifically included therein."

PICK-UPS.

Eavesdropped in a bookstore: "Have you got 'Those Twins,' by Arnold Bennett?"—F. P. A. in the New York Tribune.

MAYBE THEY AREN'T SO POOR, AFTER ALL.

Authors may not spurn the offer of money for their work, but they really do sometimes fail to cash checks, according to the cashier of the Century Co. "I don't know what they do with the checks," he said in complaint to a friend the other day, "unless they frame them. Though acknowledgments have proved the receipt of the checks, I am always carrying on the books corresponding accounts that I can't close up for months, sometimes years. I remember especially one check issued to a famous actor and author. He died a number of years ago. The check was made out anew to the estate. Still it is uncashed. There is more than one author I'd bless if he—it is usually he—would only go and get his money."

THE POWER BEHIND THE IDEA

A certain New York newspaper editor took umbrage recently at the suggestion that Henry Ford donate a million dollars toward a peace fund. "Why the million?" asked the editor. "The power of the idea, not the power behind the idea, is what should count."

Whereupon the Little Schoolmaster retorts in Printers' Ink:

Isn't it lovely to be an editor, and so be utterly removed from all consideration of sordid cash? Just to sit in the cupola and generate ideas that shall progress by their own power!

But hold on a minute—how are those ideas going to teach the people whose redemption they may be?

Between the idea and the people there intervene typesetters and pressmen; ink and white paper; rent, light, heat, taxes, and general overhead—and if the business office didn't send up the editor's pay envelope pretty promptly the flow of ideas would change to a flux of profanity—or something just as good.

The money to pay for these impertinent items reaches the business office from men of sincerity and enthusiasm, who, through the paper's advertising columns, seek to "convince the country of the truth of great, inspiring ideas" such as the superiority of White Trucks, Rameses Cigarettes, Pianolas, and Ziegfeld Follies.

Somebody's money is always behind every successful idea. The idea doesn't supply its own motive power.

Isabella hocked the crown jewels to make Columbus's idea effective, and, while I cannot speak from recent personal observation, I believe the custom of charging pew rent and taking up collections in churches still proceeds with orthodox regularity.

Nope—without cash you cannot convince the country of the truth about anything—peace or war, soap, or salvation.

An idea will travel on its own power, without cash to push it, about as far as a Ford car will run without gasoline.

Under the heading "BOOKS WANTED" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertisement for specific books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding 100 lines a year. If over five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line. Unspecified wants, reprinted matter, and all advertisements from non-subscribers, cost 10 cents a line. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY, does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "BOOKS FOR SALE" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in DECEMBER, 1915

This Reference List enters the books recorded during the month under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in CAPS, Q, O, D, etc., books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i.e. GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.
